Treatment Ethics: Ethics, Boundaries and Confidentiality Practices for Working with Clients with Substance Use Disorders

July 31, 2020 9am – 4pm Webinar on ClickMeeting

MCBAP Approved for 6 CE Hours (Specific)

Goal:

Participants will develop a knowledge and understanding of basic ethical principles to build a foundation of ethical practice and guide their decision making in the treatment of individuals with substance use disorders. In addition to ethical principles, the training will address building and maintaining healthy boundaries, and client confidentiality. Participants will be encouraged to explore how personal morals and values contribute to their ethical decision making.

Objectives:

- Define boundaries and boundary violations
- Identify factors of a therapeutic relationship and ways to foster a healthy therapeutic relationship. Explore the importance of having healthy boundaries in treatment
- Define and explore boundary crossings, boundary violations, dual relationships, and multiple relationships (including non-sexual and sexual)
- Define and differentiate between healthy and unhealthy boundaries in therapy (how to spot a boundary crossing or violation)
- Identify obstacles in establishing and maintaining healthy boundaries when working with clients with substance use disorders
- Define ethics and ethical decision making. Define and explore the 12 Ethical Principles in MCBAP/ NAADC Code of Ethical Standards
- Identify ethical dilemmas and how to make ethical decisions
- Identify the role of personal values and morals in ethical decision making
- Define Confidentiality, HIPPA Privacy and 42 CFR Part 2 rules, and Duty to Warn
